Pipeline meeting set for Dec. 16

Judge-executive will allow 10 questions from residents

By Ben Carlson
News staff

A public meeting with the company proposing to build the Bluegrass Pipeline is scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday, Dec. 16, Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway announced Monday afternoon.

The on-again, off-again meeting was agreed to by officials with Williams, the company that has been actively seeking and obtaining property easements here and along the proposed pipeline's route through Kentucky.

Conway said the meeting will be held in the community room of the Anderson Extension building, located in the county park.

Conway, who has publically condemned the pipeline project, said company officials said they are prepared and willing to answer any and all questions from residents, but that he intends to limit the number of questions to 10.

"I want 10 questions or so," Conway said by phone. "I would like

On 50th anniversary of assassination, readers recall when they heard news

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Fifty years have passed since the Nov. 22 assassination of President John F. Kennedy shocked a nation.

Decades later, the day of Kennedy's death still captivates historians and conspiracy theorists alike. Cities across the country, including Dallas and Boston, are commemorating the anniversary of JFK's assassination on Thursday with ceremonies, speeches and moments of silence.

The Anderson News asked readers on Facebook last week to share their remembrances of Kennedy's death, where they were and how they felt on Nov. 22, 1963:

"I was in the 7th grade in Woodford County. I was aware toward the end of my next to last class that teachers were whispering. Then we had to wait an unusual amount of time for the teacher of my last class, Spanish, to appear in class. She was noticeably

Hunter pleads guilty

Man who shot in direction of ex-Fish and Wildlife cop to be sentenced next month

By Ben Carlson
News staff

The Lawrenceburg hunter who was allegedly under the influence when birdshot from his gun struck a former Fish and Wildlife officer more than a year ago has pleaded guilty.

David Gaines, 41, of 1040 Lakeshore Drive pleaded guilty Nov. 5 on three Class D felony counts of wanton endangerment. A hunting under the influence charge was dismissed in a plea offer from the Commonwealth's Attorney's office.

Sentencing is scheduled for 9 a.m. Dec. 3 in Anderson Circuit Court. The offer calls for Gaines to serve one-year of supervised probation, not have access to a firearm and other conditions, according to documents on file in Anderson County Circuit Court.

Once the year is served, the charges against Gaines will be expunged from his record, according to the plea offer.

'A Country Christmas' parade is Dec. 7

From staff reports

Santa Claus is coming to town, specifically, downtown Lawrenceburg.

The city of Lawrenceburg will be hosting its annual Christmas parade Dec. 7 at 5 p.m., according to city hall.

The grand marshal will be Marva Gill in recognition of the many years of volunteer work she's dedicated to Anderson County, according to City Clerk Robbie Hume.

Parade line-up will begin at the American Legion park with judging of entries beginning at 4:30 p.m.

The parade will depart at approximately 5 p.m., winding its way down Broadway onto Main Street and end at Mustang Trail, the Main Street entrance to the Anderson County Middle School.

Those interested in participating in the parade can download an application from the city's website or pick up a form from city hall.

The city will also be holding a "Lighting of the Green" and a remembrance ceremony on Friday, Dec. 6 at 6 p.m.

Santa Claus waves to the crowd during last year's nighttime 'Parade of Lights' as it made its way from Broadway and traveled through Main Street. This year's parade with the theme 'A Country Christmas' will be held Dec. 7 at 5 p.m.

Search on for new principal at Ward

Ellis leaves for state job

From staff reports

The Anderson County school district will begin a search for a new principal of Emma B. Ward Elementary starting Nov. 18, according to Superintendent Sheila Mitchell.

Current Principal Amanda Ellis will be leaving her position at Ward after 10 years as principal to fill a new job as an academic program manager with the Kentucky Department of Education and Kentucky Board of Education.

which Mitchell said is funded through a grant from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, involves working on the new teacher evaluation system known as the Professional Growth and Effectiveness System (PGES).

Ellis' last day as principal at Ward will be Dec. 13, Mitchell said.

Ellis was hired in August 1999 as a middle school science teacher. She became principal of Emma B. Ward in 2003 after leaving her position as curriculum resource teacher at Saffell Street Elementary to take the job.

The Ward site-based decision-making (SBDM) council declared the principal vacancy on Nov. 15 and is currently accepting applications for the position.

The SBDM met Monday to begin its process of selecting a new principal and to establish a timeline for interviewing candidates.

Mitchell said in an e-mail Monday that the projected hire date for a new Ward principal has been tentatively set for Dec. 15.

The council will be drafting and offering a survey to parents, staff and other residents interested in having input in the selection of a new Ward principal.

More information on the survey and the principal selection process will be online at the Anderson County school district website at <http://www.anderson.k12.ky.us/>.

Bus bumped by vehicle on Edmondson Road

No injuries or charges filed in minor accident

By Ben Carlson
News staff

No students were injured in what is being described as a very minor incident involving a vehicle and a school bus Tuesday morning on Edmondson Road.

According to Anderson County Sheriff Troy Young, bus 65 and another vehicle met on the narrow gravel road and both came to a stop. The driver of the vehicle attempted to get around the bus by driving off the edge of the road on a slight embankment. When the driver's vehicle hit a bump, it rubbed against the rear corner of the bus, breaking the vehicle's side mirror and leaving a small smudge mark on the bus.

"That road is about as wide as a driveway," Young said afterward. "All that happened is that the two met, stopped and the driver tried to ease around the bus."

No charges were going to be filed against the driver, who was also not injured in the incident.

However minor, the incident did trigger a full response from fire, police and EMS, as is required under county policy, according to Anderson County's director of emergency management, Bart Powell.

Powell said EMS workers checked each of the approximately 15 students on the bus to ensure they were OK, along with the bus driver and the driver of the other vehicle.

Powell also described the incident as minor.

"The bus driver said when the other vehicle went down the side of the bus, the bus never moved," Powell said.

Ronnie Fields, the school district's director of district-wide programs and operations, was at the scene along with the school district's transportation director, Jeff Young.

Fields said school bus mechanics checked the bus before allowing it to continue on its route and pick up other students.

He said the school cafeterias were notified to hold breakfast for the students involved.

Powell said the county's policy on responding to school bus traffic incidents was followed, despite the severity of Tuesday's mishap.

"That policy is followed flawlessly and was followed again this time," Powell said.

The Anderson County Fire District also responded.

Man found dead in car at gas station near Walmart

No foul play suspected

From staff reports

A gas station attendant checking on a vehicle with a motor still running but hadn't moved after several hours found a man dead in his vehicle on Nov. 10 at the Murphy's station in front of Walmart, according to city police.

Felix Nelson Slone, 59, of 120 North Main St., Apt. 4, Harrodsburg died suddenly late Sunday night of apparent cardiac-related natural causes, according to Anderson County Coroner Mark Tussey.

Tussey said he's still waiting on final autopsy and toxicology reports, but has no suspicion of foul play.

Tussey said, according to preliminary autopsy results, he does not believe alcohol or drugs played any role in Slone's death.

According to Tussey, Slone drove up around 9:40 p.m.

to the air hose and vacuum equipment at the gas station.

When reviewing surveillance video, Tussey said it appeared Slone was in no distress when he asked the gas station attendant for some change.

After Slone's car didn't appear to move while idling for several hours, the attendant asked someone to check on Slone, who was found slumped over his steering wheel, Tussey said.

The attendant called 911 at about 11:45 p.m., and Slone was pronounced dead at 12:25 a.m., Tussey said.

The preliminary autopsy and Slone's medical history suggested a long-standing history of heart disease, he said.

Lawrenceburg city police and EMS also responded to the scene.

ing to his attorney, Kevin Fox.

"David was willing to enter a plea and, given the nature and short term of this diversion, it was in his best interest to take the plea and resolve this," Fox said Monday by phone, adding that if convicted by a jury, Gaines could have faced up to five years in prison.

The case against Gaines dates back more than a year and started as he and others were hunting doves in a public field off Gilberts Creek Road.

Burkhead, who retired from Fish and Wildlife several years ago, claimed shot from Gaines' gun "hit him rather hard" despite a report that shows Gaines was nearly 200 yards away when he fired.

Gaines originally faced misdemeanor charges in Anderson District Court, but those charges were ramped up to three felonies just days before he was scheduled to stand trial.

Allegedly shooting at Burkhead resulted in one felony charge. The others stem from two people hunting with Burkhead at the time, who did not claim they had been hit.

to have residents get their questions together and have a couple of people ask those questions. I don't want 120 people trying to ask questions all at once."

Since the pipeline was announced earlier this year, several attempts to have a joint meeting between the Anderson County Fiscal Court and pipeline officials have failed.

The fiscal court held a special-called meeting about the project this summer, but scheduled it at a time when pipeline officials said they could not be there.

That meeting was held anyway and dozens of people opposing the project packed the meeting and lobbied the fiscal court to oppose the pipeline.

Magistrates complied and in a largely ceremonial move unanimously voted to not support the pipeline.

Last month, the fiscal court voted unanimously to reject a requested meeting with pipeline officials after Conway said pipeline officials "won't answer questions, anyway."

Two weeks ago, Conway reversed course and told magistrates that residents had contacted him about that decision and that he wanted to allow them the chance to ask questions to pipeline officials.

Magistrates then voted unanimously to host such a meeting, but it was soon cancelled when company officials said they were already scheduled to be meetings in other locations.

Conway last week proclaimed that the pipeline is a "done deal."

He predicted that those who refuse to sell easements to Williams would eventually be forced into doing so, adding that he expects the state legislature to eventually give in and allow Williams to use eminent domain to obtain easements from holdout landowners.

The proposed pipeline has stirred controversy in communities across Kentucky and, if built, would carry the byproducts of fracking from other states to the Gulf of Mexico.

Proponents say it building the pipeline would provide jobs and tax revenue. Opponents say it would pose too great an environmental risk.

Their big, happy Bulgarian wedding

Phillips welcome new daughter-in-law in a trip of a lifetime to bride's native Bulgaria

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

One piece of bread dipped in honey, one piece dipped in salt.

Donna Phillips tore off a piece of Bulgarian bread dipped in honey and fed her stepson, Jeff, and his new wife, Valentina Vacheva to bring sweetness into their marriage.

Sitting at her kitchen table in Lawrenceburg, Donna brushes off memories of nervousness as the center of this important Bulgarian wedding tradition.

"It was important to Jeff that I participate in the wedding, too," Donna said.

She felt honored just to be a part of the wedding, to laugh and cry with the newest branch of her large blended family tree — one grafted with relatives from Japan, Mexico and Germany.

The kind of extended family — including Herb's ex-wife, Donna's ex-husband and the passel of grandchildren — that sits down for a family group photo at Christmas.

"We're a strange family, but we all get along," Donna said with a laugh.

Herb and Donna Phillips, who have been married for 33 years and live on a 126-acre farm off Avenstoke Road, spend much of their time now chasing those children and grandchildren across the country and around the world.

This fall the Phillips followed their oldest son to Bulgaria and traveled by plane, train and a bumpy van ride to the Black Sea coast resort town of Sozopol to celebrate the union of their son with his fiancée, Bulgarian native Valentina Vacheva.

Herb joked that before his son met Valentina, Herb wasn't sure if he could find Bulgaria on a map.

Don't be fooled: the well-traveled Phillips usually don't find themselves strangers in a strange land.

They've flown to Japan and visited Jeff, an Air Force veteran who works as a cyber security defense contractor in Stuttgart, Germany, several times.

Jeff, living and working on the Kessler Air Force base in Biloxi, Miss., lost everything except a cat in Hurricane Katrina.

After leaving the Air Force, Jeff moved to Germany to continue his work in cyber security, but now for Lockheed Martin. In Stuttgart he met Valentina, a public relations manager for a company that serves clients for tourism, wine, and trade fairs/markets.

Besides, after meeting Valentina's parents Nicholay and Virginia it'd be impossible to feel like a stranger in Bulgaria, Herb and Donna said.

The highlight of the trip for him, Herb said, was visiting with Jeff's in-laws Nicholay and Virginia (who loves being named after an American state, Donna laughed.)

Bulgaria is about the size of Virginia, Herb said, and Nicholay is a walking encyclopedia of his home country, a juxtaposition of modern development by rich and eager Russian investors and the ancient ruins that preserves Bulgaria's history of Roman and Greek occupation.

A beautiful country on the other end of the world, Valentina said during a phone call with the Phillips last Wednesday afternoon, that not many people even know exists.

Valentina said it was Jeff's idea to host the wedding in Bulgaria.

After all, she said with a laugh, Jeff proposed to her with the knowledge that an aged bottle of rakia — fermented grape liquor bottled and sealed by her grandfather when Valentina was born and only to be opened on the occasion of Valentina's wedding — would be waiting for him if Valentina said "yes."

Since Valentina and Jeff knew many of their invited guests wouldn't be able to make the trip to the Black Sea coast, the couple set up a live stream online of the reception for their guests, many of whom toasting felicitations from their computer screens, Valentina said.

Those able to attend the nuptials in person experienced all that an American-Bulgarian wedding had to offer — exotic bouquet and garter tosses for the Bulgarians and unfamiliar Bulgarian traditions featuring bread and flowers for the Americans.

Valentina said she left out some of the more extreme traditions — the bride and groom trying to steal a live chicken (nowadays most people use cooked chicken, she said) from the best man and maid of honor, for instance — but still wanted to incorporate a few wedding rituals.

Bulgarian traditions that included the bread ceremony, a symbolized blessing from her husband's mothers to signify the sweetness and bitterness of life.

Kicking a bowl filled with water and two flowers — one red and one white — to determine the sex of her firstborn child.

Valentina and Jeff also held another loaf of bread above their heads, and whoever pulled the biggest chunk would "be the boss" in the relationship.

"We got pretty equal pieces so I think it will be a pretty democratic family, ours."

As promised, Valentina's grandfather's rakia flowed freely.

The rakia probably helped with dancing the Hora, Donna told Valentina.

Valentina said Bulgarian weddings last through the night into the early morning, and congratulated all her American family and friends for their stamina.

"So do German weddings," Donna said with a laugh.

"It was according to all Bulgarian rules, so good job guys," Valentina, whose Sept. 7 wedding reception lasted until 4 a.m., said.

During their 10 days in Bulgaria, the Phillips recovered from the wedding by traveling through Valentina's hometown of Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria.

Herb told stories about wandering through statute gardens of fallen socialists, including an unusual monument dedicated to Ronald Reagan and the five-pointed red star removed from the former socialist epicenter and headquarters of Sophia.

Donna recounted everyone eating lunch — from sushi to stroganoff — in a modern shopping mall on parallel with anything found in the States.

Preconceived notions are meant to be changed, Donna said, thoughts that beyond the ugly steel door guarding Nicholay and Virginia's Soviet Union-era apartment stood a beautiful wooden one that opened to a warm, welcoming Bulgarian family within.

"It's important for people to travel, and it's important to travel when you're young," Donna said. "There's a world out there that people don't understand. We're not the only country on the planet."

For their next overseas adventure, the Phillips are planning a river cruise from the Netherlands to Switzerland for 2015. Of course, Herb would love to visit England. As for Donna, she envisions one of her dream travel trips to be a train ride across Canada.

Thanksgiving will be spent with their son in Texas, and then the Phillips expect Valentina and Jeff to visit Kentucky for Christmas.

They'd travel back to Bulgaria in an instant, the Phillips said.

If something like babies came up, Donna said, well then, of course they'd willingly traipse after that grandchild, too.

School district should live within its means

We're hoping that the Anderson County Board of Education already knew it had spent $660,000 more than it took in during the 2012-13 budget.

We doubt it, though, and are fairly certain it took an auditor to let board members know.

If the board knew it was spending so far beyond its income level, why didn't that problem come up even once earlier this year when board members discussed the district's budget?

Given the half-truths and in some cases outright falsehoods being told by board members when they voted to raise taxes a couple of months ago, perhaps revealing an actual fact — that the district is spending more than it takes in — would have convinced people to support a tax increase.

Last time we checked, there are still several fully state certified private daycare facilities in Anderson County, and you can bet they aren't running at a loss or — unlike the school district — they would be out of business.

Of course board members, had they even known, could not have done that because it wouldn't have jived real well with the "we've cut everything to the bone" story they preferred to spread that night.

Telling falsehoods such as, "the state's going to step in and take over the school district" was a lot less messy and provided much better cover than admitting they are spending beyond their means.

No, not a word was said about this until a review of the district's audit last week, during which an auditor from outside of Anderson County couldn't warn board members enough that they have to raise your taxes as much as legally allowed each and every year or risk having too low a fund balance.

That's all well and fine coming from someone who pays school taxes somewhere else, but allow us to offer an alternative: Do what the rest of us have to do and don't spend more money than you take in.

One place to start would be the district's daycare system, which is apparently one of the reasons the district can't live within its means. We're fully in support of teen moms getting some help to finish high school but consider it an outrage that tax money is being funneled into the elementary school daycare programs that were supposed to be pay for themselves when opened several years ago.

We understand that in this day and age when everything from food to cell phones to healthcare is supposed to be "free," it's not the job of taxpayers to offset or supplement the cost of what amounts to babysitter service for the children of parents who use the school district for that reason.

Last time we checked, there are still several fully state certified private daycare facilities in Anderson County, and you can bet they aren't running at a loss or — unlike the school district — they would be out of business.

Taxpayers are already paying for the buildings, heating, cooling and lighting for these elementary schools that now double as daycare centers, and there's no reason those using them shouldn't at least be able to cover the hard costs of keeping them open.

Of course that's just the tip of this iceberg, one that is apparently melting right in front the school board without them knowing the puddle around their ankles is getting deeper.

To be heard by the men, she spoke through a man

The Roman Catholic priest called, the sing-song lilt of his voice heard through the telephone:

"So, what are we going to suggest today?"

he asked her, the usual conversation necessary before the next committee meeting.

Retired Disciples of Christ minister Pat Yates, sitting at her kitchen table last Friday afternoon, said her ideas on Christian education would only be heard if spoken through the mouth of her friend, a Roman Catholic priest also serving on a committee to develop programs for inner-city youth in Ohio.

Otherwise, the men dismissed Yates.

In the mid-1960s, it may have been easy to dismiss her.

But landscape of the modern church has changed and is continuing to change.

A progressive start-up church led by a tattooed female minister is getting attention nationally, according to a recent popular religion article published by the Washington Post, and getting more members.

The debate rages online and in the pews: Is this the kind of church that improves Christianity for the better?

For Yates, yes.

Change gives Yates — who wasn't ordained as a pastor until she was in her 50s — hope.

Hope for young women thinking about entering the ministry.

Hope for those who want to return to a church that can hold its own in the modern world.

Hope for others who also believe that "in the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God," the verse as close to Yates' concept of God as she can articulate.

"I'm not your traditional preacher," Yates told her small Alabama congregation, her first church as senior pastor, decades later. "I'm more of a storyteller."

Yates explained her circuitous path to ministry was part circumstance and part personality: Yates said she always felt more comfortable — not preaching in front of a congregation on Sunday morning — but encouraging other to use their gifts.

It took some time to discover her own calling, however.

The idea that Yates could become a minister never occurred to her as a young religion student at Berea College, the Eastern Kentucky native said.

Yates was the first of 18 cousins to attend a university, any university.

Berea opened doors, Yates said, to a nanny job for a doctor who lived on Park Avenue in New York City to a master's degree in religious education at a seminary in Hartford, Conn.

In the early '60s, a career as a pastor wasn't even suggested to her.

A theology professor at her seminary, she said, even vocally proclaimed his dislike of women attending his class.

Yates raised her hand and asked questions all the more.

Obama's blunder is destroying America

To the editor:

As Americans we toil daily to provide for ourselves and for our family... ah, the pursuit of happiness for many.

Some of us may be less fortunate or challenged to work for a wage so we seek outreach from other entities.

This administration, specifically our president, has done a magnificent job of destroying what we thought we could still pursue and in turn those who need his leadership the most to lose hope; funny that Mr. Obama ran his campaign on hope and change, a transparent one as well. All I see is opaque untruths and further division of our culture.

An analogy: Let's say that you were given one task at work and you worked tirelessly to perfect your project and then at the end, present it to a governing body or your peers as your own.

Fact: Mr. Obama introduces The Affordable Health Care Act. He's taken on only one task while in office and we can now name and envision the hundreds of blunders and failures of his solo project and everything else he has touched.

We have got to let these politicians know that they work for us, we don't toil for them and they are not allowed to destroy our America.

Adopt a senior pet in November

To the editor:

November is senior pet month. Why not think about giving an older dog or cat a home? There are many advantages to adopting a senior companion animal.

For one thing, you can see what you're getting. There won't be any surprises about how big it will get, and you'll know from the start what to expect with grooming and coat care. Older dogs and cats are steady and reliable since their personalities have matured and age has calmed them and made them easy to handle. They've been around the block a few times, so to speak, and they settle easily into a new situation, valuing the love and comfort of a good home. They just need a comfortable bed and regular meals, and maybe a warm lap.

Senior animals require a shorter commitment than puppies and kittens, and are generally better behaved than their immature counterparts. Older dogs are usually already house-trained, and may know a few basic commands. Walking an older dog is usually a calmer experience than being walked by a young, un-trained one. Just because they are older doesn't mean older animals can't appreciate and return your love.

Senior dogs make great pets for older folks who want to stay in shape, because those daily walks mean you can enjoy an extra portion of ice cream or another slice of pizza. Loneliness can be a problem for some senior citizens and older cats and dogs can provide companionship for those who live alone.

Don't think an older dog or cat can't learn new tricks or take on new habits. Just like you, all pets need mental stimulation, and kindly encouraging your pet to learn new behaviors will get the brain cells hopping for both of you. Older pets can still enjoy interactive toys, such as Kongs, and it's fun to watch them figure out how to get the treat.

Most important of all, you can save a life and be a hero. Older dogs are often the last to be adopted, and saving a senior dog or cat offers great emotional reward every day you are together. So stop by Anderson Humane Society's adoption center and become a hero.

Avoid packing on additional holiday pounds

The holiday season is full of wonderful tasty food that tends to add pounds to those who overindulge. The Weight Management for the Holidays program can help you avoid packing on the pounds as you enjoy the holidays with family, friends and coworkers.

What you eat and how much you exercise can help balance calorie intake with calorie output. Unfortunately most of us overestimate how many calories we use when we move. For example, it would take about 45 minutes of walking at a moderate pace of 3.5 mph to burn off the calories in two average size purchased chocolate chip cookies. We tend to think that we use a lot more calories. Of course, this is the average amount of calories burned. Personal characteristics such as size of the individual and fitness level affect the outcome as well as the intensity of activity.

The healthy weight strategies are not anything new so we need to remind ourselves of what works for us. The Weight Management program doesn't prescribe a diet plan. Rather, the program promotes healthy eating and activity for life. It's a support group to help you reach your goals. There are no prizes or incentives attached to the program, just the tremendous satisfaction that you reached your goal. Remember that not gaining weight during the holidays is success even if you didn't lose any weight. Try the following ideas to help you reach your goals.

Make healthy food choices

Eat more fiber and eat more often. Don't save up calories by eating light during the day and then overindulge at the holiday party. This plan doesn't work because we tend to eat more than the calories we saved. It's better to eat five small meals a day and never be starving hungry. Be sure to include some healthy fats in your foods so you have a feeling of fullness and satisfaction. Salads at every meal may not be your best choice for lasting weight loss.

Increase your activity level

Add variety to your workout plan. Walking works for weight loss and so does adding some kind of weight and strength training.

Build a supportive environment

You will meet people at the weight management program who can become part of your supportive environment and maybe workout partners. Learn what to say to your family and friends so they will be more supportive and stop trying to sabotage your weight management plans.

More keys for successful weight management include:

Keep trying. Don't give up. It took a long time to pack on the pounds and it takes a while to permanently lose them. Quick weight loss usually results in quick weight gain when you stop the regimen.

Don't deny yourself. On the other hand, don't overindulge.

Weigh yourself often, maybe a couple of times a week.

Exercise one hour a day at least five days a week. Plan fun activities that you enjoy and add variety.

Reward yourself for success with healthy fun activities and nonfood items.

Register for Weight Management for the Holidays by calling the Anderson County Extension Office at 502-839-7271. There is no charge for the class which begins on Thursday, Dec. 5 at 6 p.m. in the conference room at the Extension office. At least 10 people must register by noon on Dec. 4 or the class will be cancelled.

crazy,” she said.
 Later, that same professor asked if Yates was thinking about getting a doctorate.
 Her needling must have worked somehow, she said.
 Yates grew up around God and with God. Her mother worked nights selling Avon but still taught Sunday school every single Sunday. Her father, excommunicated from the Catholic church when he married her mother, answered Yates’ probing questions about why her peers seemed to dislike Catholics.
 “I don’t remember a time I didn’t,” Yates said after she was asked when she first consciously felt the existence of a higher power. “It was just sort of the air you breathe.”
 Much is different from the time Yates, as an undergraduate student, taught Sunday school on the beach at Yellowstone Park and spent seven years leading a congregation in Auburn, Ala.
 Gone are the days of playing telephone to get her suggestions for the church heard when the days of seeing her daughter-in-law and son working as ministers (both moved from Lawrenceburg to Indiana a few years ago) are here.
 “I felt there was maybe more I was being called to do, but I didn’t know what that was,” Yates said.
 Then she did.
 And that has made all the difference.

Gaines case a black eye for legal system

Column as I see ‘em ...
 I’ll bet you’re curious about this photo, and I’ll get to that in a moment, but first let me say how disappointed I am that the fellow charged with drunk hunting and wanton endangerment has pleaded guilty instead of standing trial.

Ben Carlson
 Publisher

David Gaines, a Lawrenceburg man who in my view was railroaded into this mess, pleaded out on three Class D felony counts and in essence now admits to shooting in the direction of other hunters earlier this year in a dove field.
 The drunk hunting charge was dismissed, based on him agreeing to plead guilty.
 I say Gaines was railroaded because he was originally charged with misdemeanors but refused to cop a plea and seemingly dared prosecutors to prove him guilty for allegedly having birdshot from his dove gun hit former

Fish and Wildlife officer Rex Burkhead from nearly 200 yards away.
 If, and it’s a big if, the birdshot defied physics and flew that far, it would have hit Burkhead with about as much force as being kissed by a kitten.
 Then, out of the blue and just days before his trial, those charges were ratcheted up from misdemeanor to felony counts, allowing prosecutors to avoid the dubious task of convicting him in District Court — not to mention the underlying family and business squabbles that were what this case was actually about to be put on full display in open court.
 As I predicted days after the charges were cranked up, Gaines would almost certainly have to plead out because it’s simply too risky to stick to his guns and risk being a convicted felon for the rest of his life.
 I’m sorry to say I was right, but that doesn’t make this entire sordid case any less wrong.
 This case is a black eye for Anderson County’s entire legal system, although a pass is certainly warranted for the Fish and Wildlife officers who responded to that dove field and were simply doing their jobs.

 Now about that photo ...
 I snapped it Saturday after nearly spitting my iced tea (unsweetened, thanks) all over my windshield while driving through the McDonald’s on the north end of town.
 To keep it clean here, I used my admittedly lousy Photoshop skills to blur the pair of S’s between the A and H, as well as the truck’s license plates.
 The iced tea spitting wasn’t because it surprised me so much to see such utter disdain of the president and the people responsible for putting him in office. Political discord was remarkably offensive in the years leading up to Obama’s election — remember the former vice president, Al Gore, shouting “Bush lied and people died?” — so this guy’s dissent being so vibrantly displayed isn’t all that surprising.
 It’s unique, though, because I cannot recall ever seeing a vulgarity so prominently displayed on a vehicle, and couldn’t help but wonder two things: 1. What kind of response does this guy get? 2. Has his tailgate message ever gotten him pulled over by the police?

 So after taking the photograph, I waited for the man to come outside and asked.
 Seemingly unfazed that someone dressed to kill (deer) would be taking a photo of his truck, the guy walked up, pumped my hand hard enough to make it sore and proudly stated he is from Louisville.
 “I catch a little [crap],” the man said. “Most people like it, though, and honk or wave when I drive by.”
 He added that he does catch more [crap] in the cities because they tend to bend more liberal, but when he gets into smaller towns like Lawrenceburg, he rarely gets anything but a positive response.

 As for the police, he said they’re not a problem, including when he drove around Obama’s hometown of Chicago.
 “Illinois State Police came alongside me and gave me a thumbs up,” he said. “Police are the same everywhere.”
 But is it legal to use a vulgarity like that on your tailgate, I asked.
 “Ever hear of the First Amendment?” he retorted. “You’re looking at the First Amendment on display.”
 I guess so, but on that Saturday morning in Lawrenceburg, it seems to me the First Amendment was working some serious overtime.

Learn to stay warm when old man winter growls

Yo-yo weather is here. This time of year, Kentucky’s temperatures can go up for hours or even days, teasing us, right before it slams back down to “Where’s my coat?” temps. We go from comfortable to cold, and back again, giving us four seasons in one day.

I think it’s Mother Nature’s way of gently breaking us into winter. Kind of like the lights in a theater dimming, to let us know the show is about to begin. I just hope it’s not gearing up for a record breaking performance.
 In the house, I do everything I can to retain heat.

Lined or double drapes is the norm. In years passed, I have covered many of the windows with sheets of heavy clear plastic. It really helps keep the cold out, even with my double paned windows.
 Recently, I saw an idea to use bubble wrap instead of the plastic sheets. I wouldn’t want to use it everywhere, because I like to see out, but I could use it on some windows. We all have those shades we never pull up, or drapes that never open all the way. An unheated attic, garage or shed can benefit as well. Light still comes through and the space will stay warmer.

All you have to do is find some packing material store or order online for large bubble wrap. Furniture stores throw it out by the ton, so check there for some freebies. Measure the window, then cut to fit. Clean the window, then spray it with a film of water. It makes the wrap stick naturally. You may want a few pieces of double stick tape for the corners.

The nice thing about using the bubble wrap is that you can cut a little U-shaped peep window in the middle of it, so you can lower a little flap to peek outside anytime you want. It pushes back up and it stays by itself. You could even decorate it for Christmas if you'd like.

Outside, you may have some perennials that are more tender to the cold. You can try bubble wrap, but I'd use leaves. There are plenty around and they don't cost a dime. Put a short wire cage (6 inches tall) around the base of the plant and pour the leaves into it until it's full. Think of it as putting a big, fluffy comforter on the roots.

Thanksgiving just a week and a day away and that usually means company is coming. Since we have no idea what the weather will be on that feasty day, you might want to have something on hand to make steps and walks safe.

A spray bottle filled with one third water and two-thirds white vinegar will melt the ice away. All you have to do is spray. It works on car windows too. Do not use it on door locks (try spraying rubbing alcohol into the lock). If you have a lot of steps, then grab the garden sprayer and fill it up. It won't spoil.

You know we aren't the only living thing to want to find a warm place to hibernate for the winter, right? Your house may look like the Hilton to some small, furry creatures and they can be very creative at breaking and entering.

To make your home less inviting, get peppermint oil and pour it onto cotton balls. Place the cotton balls around pipes, holes in walls or wherever you think they are entering. It makes the house smell great and keeps the mice out.

Now, it's crunch time for all outdoor chores. If you haven't gotten around to it, do it. Unhook the hoses, put up the chairs and tools, and batten down the hatches. Old man winter is on his way and I don't think he's in a good mood. Happy Growing.

Veterans service held at American Legion

From staff reports

The American Legion Auxiliary and Legion members conducted a veterans service Nov. 10 at the Legion fairgrounds, according to a press release.

Unit 34 President Betty Butler welcomed everyone and Chaplain Dolores Mefford had an opening prayer. Post 34 Commander Bill Sloan led the Pledge of Allegiance. Junior member Anna Boyles sang the National Anthem and "amazed everyone with her beautiful voice," according to event organizers.

Butler introduced the dignitaries that included POW Alvin H. Perry, County Clerk Jason Denny, Jailor Joani Clark, Magistrate Buddy Sims, Past Post Commander Bobby Thornberry and state Rep. Kim King, who was the guest speaker. Sloan and Post member Bobbie Cubert did the recognition of the POW table.

Nettie Halvorson read a poem and also told about care packages the Auxiliary sent to soldiers and how much they were appreciated. One soldier had kept every piece of mail he had received from school children and the Auxiliary.

Vernon Huber spoke about military items that were set up at the clubhouse for veterans to purchase. He presented Sloan with a plaque for the Legion and Butler with a plaque for the Auxiliary.

Vernon invited everyone to the clubhouse for the meal. Dolores Mefford had closing prayer and everyone went to the clubhouse to eat. These three churches provided a delicious catered meal courtesy of Family Worship Center, Open Bible Church and New Life Christian Fellowship. Many church members were there to decorate and serve the veterans. Middle school children made placemats for all the tables. Meals were taken to some veterans who were unable to attend.

A veterans service was also held at Heritage Hall, according to the news release.

Auxiliary members Betty Butler, Nettie Halvorson and Junior member Anna Boles conducted a veterans service on Nov. 11 at Heritage Hall Care Center. Boyles sang the National Anthem and everyone enjoyed her beautiful voice.

She also passed out poppies. Betty had made an appreciation certificate for each of the six veterans that included their branch of service. President Butler told attendees that Veterans Day was originally called Armistice Day. Nettie told the poppy story and read the "In Flanders Field" poem. Refreshments were served by Heritage Hall personnel.

'Harvest for Haiti' raises over $25,000

From staff reports

Roughly 400 people packed meals for the hungry in Haiti on Nov. 9, sending more than 100,000 bags of rice and raising more than $25,000 for the "Harvest for Haiti" ministry, according to event organizers.

Fox Creek Christian Church served as the host for "Harvest for Haiti," a ministry sponsored by Mission Journeys.

Two of the Lawrenceburg event organizers, Lisa Floyd and Donnie Campbell, set goals of 100,000 meals and $20,000 over the course of eight hours.

"We exceeded both of our goals; we packed a little over 100,000 meals and raised over $25,000," Floyd wrote in an e-mail.

"Now we'll be able to send additional meals with the extra money that was raised."

Approximately 400 people from Lawrenceburg and surrounding communities showed up on that Saturday to don hairnets and pack bag upon bag for the hungry in Haiti.

The bags of food, filled with a combination of vitamins, soy, rice and dehydrated vegetables, were weighed, sealed, packed and loaded the food onto trucks to be distributed through Mission Journeys.

School district 'needs improvement' in writing

State releases district program review results for arts and humanities, practical living and writing

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Three out of six Anderson County schools were reported as "proficient" in writing following the publication of program review data self-reported by Kentucky school districts and released at the end of October by the Kentucky Department of Education.

Ezra Sparrow Early Childhood Center, Robert B. Turner Elementary and Saffell Street Elementary all scored high enough to be considered "proficient" while the Anderson County High School, middle school and Emma B. Ward were labeled as "needs improvement" in writing, according to the Kentucky Department of Education's data.

Anderson County Instructional Supervisor Sharon Jackman said program reviews are important because all three programs chosen this year — writing, practical living and career studies and arts and humanities — apply to career readiness.

"Traditional paper-and-pencil tests limit the evaluation of what students learn," Jackman said via e-mail. "With program reviews, schools have more flexibility. Students can experience the content and demonstrate their knowledge, skills and understanding in non-traditional ways."

Jackman said based on Anderson County's results, strengths in the programs reviewed this year were in curriculum and instruction standards.

Across the district, however, there is room for improvement in professional development and assessment of the district's programs.

"We will continue to use our data to identify our strengths, weaknesses and areas of growth to assist us toward continuous improvement for our students in Anderson County," Jackman said in an e-mail. "Program reviews help each school focus on these important areas so that everyone in the school can contribute to improvement."

Program review scores will be added to the district's existing accountability results, reported this past October, and the district will need to adjust its assessment goals for the upcoming round of testing in the spring.

The program reviews will account for 23 percent of a school's overall accountability score, while 77 percent will be assigned to college-and career-readiness as well as individual student test results.

The new accountability target goals will be sent to the Anderson County school district from the Kentucky Department of Education later this month, Jackman said.

District personnel self-evaluated their programs based on criteria including curriculum, professional development, assessment and administrative leadership on a scale of 0-3, with the lowest score being "non-existent" and the highest as "distinguished."

All four criteria scores were added together for an overall total point score from 0-12.

Schools that achieved an average score higher than 10.8 were rated distinguished; scores 8-10.7 resulted in a proficient rating while scores below 7 resulted in a "needs improvement" rating.

Ezra Sparrow Early Childhood Center reported the lowest score for arts and humanities programs in the district, at 4.2 out of 12, while Robert B. Turner Elementary submitted a perfect score of 12 for its program.

For practical living and career studies, the district received an overall proficient classification.

Anderson County High School submitted a score of 10 for the highest proficient rating for its practical living and career studies programs. The middle school tied with Turner for the next highest score, at 7.5, but received a "needs improvement" rating.

Each Anderson County school has formed a committee to conduct the three program reviews, Jackman said, and the reviews are an ongoing, year-long process.

Staff contributes to the process of evidence collection for the program reviews, including student work, videos of performances, professional development documents, questionnaires and other information, she said.

According to a press release from the Kentucky Department of Education, program reviews of schools' kindergarten through third grade programs and world language programs are scheduled to be added later.

Majority of Anderson County graduates staying in college

Report tracks class of 2010's college performance

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

More Anderson County High School seniors are going to college and more than half of the class of 2010 came back for their sophomore year, according to data released by the state education department.

The 2013 Kentucky High School feedback report, released last week by the Kentucky Department of Education, tracks the academic progress of former high school students as they seek college degrees.

The data, produced by the Kentucky Center for Education and Workforce Statistics, show Anderson County students rank higher than the state in the number of seniors that enroll and remain in college for the freshmen and sophomore years, but from the class of 2010, 64.1 percent (276 students) attended college for the '10-11 academic year compared to the state's 61 percent.

Almost three-fourths of those students, 72.4 percent, were young women. A little less than half of seniors sought four-year bachelor's degree, the report said.

Anderson County jumped a few percentage points ahead of the state in returning students as well with 55.1 percent of 2010 ACHS graduates attending both the fall and spring semesters of their first year of college.

That's a 9 percent drop of those Anderson County college freshmen that initially enrolled in college, according to the report.

The state, as a whole, reported a 9.7 percent drop in students who did not complete both semesters of their freshman year.

That percentage dropped further for Anderson County students returning to complete a second year of college, at 51.1 percent for the Class of 2010.

The state reported that only 46.4 percent of college freshmen completed their first and second years of college coursework.

The 2013 feedback report also detailed the average amount of financial aid and loans Anderson County students received.

Graduates from the class of 2010 received approximately $10,060 per student in loans and government aid for attending in-state, four-year institutions.

Anderson County seniors who chose in-state, two-year public colleges received an average of $5,140 in financial aid and loans per student, the report showed.

Saffell Street hosts Arts Day

From staff reports
Saffell Street Elementary held an Arts Day on Nov. 4, with each classroom choose to participate in activities that enhanced student learning in the arts, according to a press release.

Some of the students' choices included listening to Rob Pottorf, a writer and composer for Disney who resides in Lexington; hearing from local Kentucky authors Kay Cox and Ann Gabbhart; viewing the wood carvings of artist Joe Clark; and touring an "instrument zoo" where students got to pick up, examine and play many different types of instruments from drums to violins.

GRAND JURY INDICTMENTS

Shelbyville woman indicted for owing $17K in child support

From staff reports

A Shelbyville woman who allegedly owes over $17,000 in child support was indicted by the grand jury Nov. 5 on two Class D felonies for flagrant non-support, according to court documents.

Christy Gail Wilson, 35, whose residence is listed as Shelbyville on bail release documents but Florida on the indictment, owed $17,573.51 as of Sept. 22, court documents show.

A warrant for her arrest was issued in January and she was taken into custody in August in Shelbyville before being released on $10,000 cash bail.

She was arraigned in Anderson District Court and has since been declared indigent by the court.

Other indictments

Larry L. Ramsey, 21, of 3109 Fawn Leap Drive, Lawrenceburg was indicted for second-degree assault and fleeing or evading police.

The indictment stems from his arrest Feb. 1 when he allegedly intentionally caused physical injury to Robin A. Frazier by means of a deadly weapon or dangerous instrument, according to court records.

The fleeing charge stems from him refusing to stop for police Feb. 4, according to court records.

He was arrested by officer Joe Brock of the Lawrenceburg Police Department.

James D. Perry, 23, of 409 East Court St.,

Lawrenceburg was indicted for trafficking Oxycodone and Psilocybin, controlled substance prescription not in original container and public intoxication.

The indictment stems from charges against Perry on Sept. 13 by the Kentucky State Police.

Stewart M. Huffman, 21, of 102 Township Square, Lawrenceburg was indicted for trafficking Oxycodone, illegal possession of a controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia and illegal possession of a legend drug.

The indictment stems from his arrest March 28 by officer Josh Satterly of the Lawrenceburg Police Department.

Sorry, Mr. Mayor, being spiritual just isn't enough

In a recent article posted in the religion section of the huffingtonpost.com, newly elected mayor of New York, Bill de Blasio, revealed that he is among the "religiously unaffiliated" in an effort to quash rumors that he is "an atheist who is against churches."

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

He acknowledged that he considers himself a man of faith. While "I'm not affiliated with any particular church," he said, "I do consider myself a spiritual person."

de Blasio's description of his religious persuasion is gaining popularity among many Americans, especially young adults. Labeling himself as spiritual allows him to avoid the stigma associated with atheism while steering clear of the supposed restraint that comes with belief in the God of the Bible. Being spiritual, as he defines it, empties Christianity of its historic creeds, convictional department, moral imperatives, and exclusive character; it reduces Jesus to one divine among many, rather than the one and only.

Social analysts have written much about the rise of this group they label as the "Nones." According to a Gallup poll, the number of "Nones" increased from 17.5 percent in 2011 to 17.8 percent in 2012, a sharp increase from 14.6 percent in 2008. While these numbers subject to interpretation by the experts, they do tell us one thing — society is becoming increasingly secular and its most popular form touts this pseudo-spiritual mindset.

In referring to oneself as an atheist you admit to holding certain convictions, among them an acceptance of Darwinian evolutionary theory and disapproval for all things religious, especially in public life. But to refer to oneself as spiritual is an accepted form of unbelief because it allows for tolerance of various breeds of dogmas, while rejecting supposed religious restraints, primarily any form of Judeo-Christian influence on society and public life.

This brand of spirituality is a one-man (or woman) show where each scene is subject to one's own private interpretation. Any notion of God tends to be amalgamated with just about any other concept of enlightenment and self-awareness. It allows for some mystery beyond our ability to explain things while grounding it in a strictly humanistic framework in that it begins and ends with the person.

What shall we say to this? To say we are spiritual is not incorrect; we are inherently spiritual beings (Genesis 2:7; Job 32:8; Zechariah 12:1). While our flesh is decaying, our spirits are immortal and will consciously exist for eternity somewhere (1 Corinthians 5:8; Matt. 10:28).

Furthermore, our spirits were created to long for something beyond this life. We were created for God (Psalm 100:3), to be in relationship with him (Genesis 3:8). While this relationship was severed by sin (Ephesians 2:1) it can be restored by God's grace through faith in the person and work of Jesus Christ (Ephesians 2:8-10; Romans 5:1).

True spirituality is the truths of the Gospel being worked out in the lives of believers who are indwelt by the spirit of Christ (Romans 8:9). This spirituality will be informed by our study of the Bible, and connection with the local church. The church is the body of Christ (Ephesians 1:22-23); we are members of it by his grace. It is within the covenant community that we are encouraged, challenged, corrected and conformed into the likeness of Christ (Hebrews 10:24-25; Colossians 3:15-16). We cannot grow apart from it.

If you think yourself spiritual and reject the exclusivity of Jesus Christ, the authority of the Word of God and the necessity of the local church, think again; it is only a damnable spirituality that deems these truths unnecessary (1 John 4:1-3).

UNITY

Is there unity among all the local churches in Lawrenceburg and the surrounding counties? NO! Could there be unity among the churches of this area? YES! All of these different churches are divided by name, doctrine and purposes. How could this unity come about with such diversity. We cannot go to heaven unless we are united together in Christ.

First of all let us understand that God expects those who claim to be his children to be filled with unity. Notice these thoughts:

1. Keep the unity of the Spirit - Eph. 4:1-4
2. Unity is good and pleasant - Psalm 133:1
3. Be of the same mind - Romans 12:16
4. Speak the same things - 1 Cor. 1:10
5. Walk by the same rule - Phil. 3:16
6. One mind - live in peace 2 Cor. 13:11

There are seven points of Unity that can be noted in Paul's writings to the Ephesians. In Ephesians 4:4-6 we learn of the ONE body (church), ONE Spirit, ONE hope, ONE Lord, ONE faith, ONE baptism, ONE God and Father of all.

If we can understand the ONE Lord, Spirit, and God we also can accept the ONE church. We need to dissolve all these manmade churches and get back to being the ONE body of Christ. Will we do it? I doubt it because we are wedded to error like our parents before us and we will not rightly divide the world of truth (2 Tim. 2:15).

Trish Clark, left, portrays Mary Todd Lincoln as those in attendance look on last Friday in an event Lawrenceburg Pierian Woman's Club and organized by Anderson County Adult Learning Center.

Mary Todd Lincoln delights local audience

From staff reports

An audience of about 50 people filled the Pierian Woman's Clubhouse wing of the Anderson County Public Library last Friday evening to watch Trish Clark portray "Mary Todd Lincoln — A House Divided."

Part of the Kentucky Humanities Council's Chautauqua series, Clark told Lincoln's story from her Lexington childhood to meeting Abraham Lincoln in Springfield, their marriage and triumphant journey to Washington, D.C. Following the tragedies of the Civil War, the deaths of three sons and Abraham Lincoln's assassination, she was devastated by grief and was briefly committed to a mental institution by her only surviving son.

A highlight of the question-and-answer session afterward was an exchange between Clark and Lawrenceburg's Jim Sayre, who portrays Abraham Lincoln for Kentucky Chautauqua. The program was funded by the Lawrenceburg Pierian Woman's Club and organized by Anderson County Adult Learning Center. Refreshments, including bourbon balls and buckeyes, cookies, coffee and cider, were provided by the club.

The candies are made as a fundraiser for community outreach projects, and are now available by the dozen in holiday tins; bourbon balls are $12 and buckeyes $7. Orders may be placed with Sue Litkenhus, 839-6659.

High school to hold 'college and career-readiness' week

From staff reports

Throughout the week seniors will be given opportunities to explore the "next steps" needed to prepare for life after graduation through a "College and Career-Readiness" week held Nov. 18-22, according to a news release from the school.

Representatives from colleges, vocational/technical schools, public service, and military branches will be present during the week to talk to students about post-secondary opportunities.

The high school will also be hosting Red Ribbon week to promote drug prevention, according to school social worker Susan Kays.

Wednesday, Nov. 20 — Career Hat Day

Seniors will be in small group lab meetings to complete a career interest survey and discuss their ASVAB results from September, as well as to complete college applications. Faculty, staff and students are encouraged to wear a hat or create a hat that best represents their career choice. (Hats must be taken off during class, but they may be worn in the hallways.) County Clerk Jason Denny will be available during lunch on Nov. 20 and Nov. 21 to discuss public service and voter registration with students.

Thursday, Nov. 21 — College Day

Again today, seniors will be participating in college application day where they will report to designated computer labs in small groups to work with a myriad of representatives from ACHS, colleges, community leaders, military, etc. to complete an online college/vocational tech application and college planning report. Each student who completes online report and application will have their name entered for a special drawing. Additionally, students who have already been accepted to a college/university are asked to bring in a copy of their acceptance letters for submission into a drawing.

Thursday, Nov. 21 — Financial aid workshop

Need help paying for college? Want to know what types of funding is available to pay for college? Jo Newton, KHEAA Outreach Representative, will discuss financial aid for college including completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

Parents and students are encouraged to attend the workshop, which will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the ACHS auditorium.

Friday, Nov. 30 — #TeamAC Day

Faculty, staff, and students are encouraged to wear t-shirts or sweat-shirts showcasing their involvement in Anderson County/ Bearcat community. A Class of 2014 celebration will occur at 2:30 p.m. in the auditorium. Awards will be given out for dress-up participation for the week, door decorating and the college-career readiness participation tickets.

Dad Shannon Harris, left, gives his daughter Emma a high-five before the practice round of the second grade spelling bee held Monday at the Board of Education office. Emma, who attends Turner Elementary, went on to place second in the second-grade bee on Monday. Spelling bees featuring classroom winners from across the district and the Christian Academy were held Monday and Tuesday at the Board of Education office. Winning spellers in grades 1-8 will move on to the district-wide spelling bee to be held at the end of January at the Anderson County High School.

Third-and-long in playoff season

We're at third and long. That's the third round of the state high school football playoff season and a long way to go to get to the fourth step of a five-step journey to a state championship. Friday night, it's for all the regional marbles. It is probably the most anticipated game at Anderson since the Bearcats hosted Southwestern in the 2011 state semifinals. That one came after the Bearcats had defeated Conner for the regional title. But this is a different year and a much different scenario. Anderson County vs. Franklin County for a trip to the state Final Four. You have two historically decent programs that have striven for years to join the state's elite. It has been a journey that, for them, has been largely futile. There have been great teams over the years, but Anderson has only one regional title, that one that came two years ago, to show for it.

Franklin has been in a bit of the same boat, with only one regional final appearance - last year's 40-27 loss to Cooper - since 1995. Beyond that time, KHSAA records are sketchy.

It is two schools that have had long rivalries in other sports, but only a recent one in football, going at it for the chance to get one step closer to Bowling Green and the state Class 5A final.

Even though Anderson won by two touchdowns when the teams clashed on Oct. 18, Franklin is considered the slightest of favorites in the Rating the State rankings that appeared in Monday's Lexington Herald-Leader.

Franklin was named a half-point favorite by the Litratings in Tuesday's Courier-Journal. It really could be that close.

Anderson has played one of the toughest schedules in school history. Three Anderson opponents, Mercer County and Collins in Class 4A and Franklin in 5A, are still alive in the state playoffs. Anderson also scrimmaged unbeaten Mason County (3A) in its final tune up for the season.

Franklin County has also played three teams that are still alive. Franklin has wins over Frankfort and Beechwood, which play for a Class 1A regional title Friday night. Franklin also played Anderson County.

Left over from Friday's win over Conner is the vastly underrated job the Anderson County defense has done all season long.

Since the Bearcats slipped past Conner, it has been popular to question Drew Barker after hitting just 6-of-23 passes. Granted, Barker got off to a slow start, but he had several passes dropped, which is a little bit of a problem for a quarterback, you know.

But to just say it was an off night from Barker overlooks the fantastic job the Anderson defense did for 48 minutes. It harassed Barker all night long.

Barker can play. Forget his pedestrian passing stats Friday night. He's big. He's strong. He's legit. He ran for 111 yards.

Obviously, tacklers from Alabama will be tougher than Anderson County, but Barker has the size and release that should be a fit for Neal Brown's attack at Kentucky.

Finally a hoops note. It is a coincidence that our basketball feature, entitled "String Music on Tour," comes out three days after Mr. String Music, Joe Dean, passed away.

We had an idea to play off some music interests of the Anderson coaches for the preview and, yes, the String Music part of our theme was my little tribute to Dean, the LSU All-American who probably did more to popularize basketball in the southeast than anyone not named Rupp.

Our preview went to press last Friday.

I never met Joe Dean, but something tells me he would have liked our tribute.

May he rest in peace.

Bearcat-Flyer showdown for regional title finally happens on Friday

Franklin wins in overtime for another chance at Anderson

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

It took three years, but finally, it has happened.

When the Kentucky High School Athletic Association realigned football in time for the 2011 season, many fans and media alike were looking forward to those Anderson County-Franklin County showdowns for the Region 3 championship.

After all, Anderson had begun making a name for itself under Coach Mark Peach, while the buzz around Franklin centered around an electrifying talent named Ryan Timmons. It looked like the Bearcats and Flyers were set to rule the region for several years.

Alas, Anderson won the region in 2011, while Franklin has had only one regular-season loss - to Anderson last month - in that time, but that post-season rematch for a regional crown had never materialized.

Until last Friday, that is. Anderson, the District 6 champion, survived a furious Conner comeback to advance to the regional final, 35-34. Franklin took

It was the tandem that an increasing number of central Kentucky football fans would love to see over the next four years.

Barker to Cox, helping the Kentucky Wildcats climb up the Southeastern Conference ladder.

Last Friday, however, the combination was good news only for Ross Cox and his Anderson County teammates.

Cox picked off Conner's Drew Barker, one of the gems of Kentucky's recruiting class of 2014, with just over five minutes to play to effectively preserve Anderson County's 35-34 win over Conner in the second round of the state Class 5A football playoffs.

"It had a little mustard on it when it hit the receiver," Cox said. "It just bounced off his hands."

And it bounced into Cox's mitts at the Anderson 12-yard line to stop Conner's potential go-ahead touchdown drive.

"Ross always steps up when we need him to. He is just a great player," said Anderson lineman Darius Harvey, like Cox a senior.

The Bearcats killed the final 5:17, taking a knee twice inside the Conner 5 after Cox ran for a first down with just over a minute to play with Conner out of time outs.

Rams look to be up-tempo

From staff reports

It's basketball time again at The Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg where the Rams started out their 2013-2014 Varsity campaign with a real treat on Oct. 31.

The Rams won their first game of the season against Hearts of Christ Academy of Louisville, 62-33. The Rams rushed out to an early lead in the first quarter behind the tenacious defense by guards Caleb Hatton, Chandler Royalty, Nathan Ward and Hunter Wells causing several turnovers and then adding excellent scoring by the guards and post players Jason Smith and Michael Cooper. Early into the second

Cat Madness 21 tips off hoop season

From staff reports

The annual Cat Madness tips off the Anderson County High School basketball season Saturday with the Bearcats hosting Central Hardin in a scrimmage to cap off the evening at approximately 7:40 p.m.

The event gets under way at 1 p.m. with the Anderson County Middle School teams taking on Henry County in the auxiliary gym at the high school.

"This is a community event to see all of the basketball teams," Anderson County boys' coach Glen Drury said.

Central Hardin is considered to be one of the better teams in the Fifth Region but the Bruins are young, with only one returning starter, according to The Cats' Pause. Central Hardin, however, is expected to have a very talented group of underclassmen step in.

Anderson, which dropped a scrimmage to Lexington Christian last week, will likely be without several players who are still involved in the state football playoffs at press time. Central Hardin should also be without some players as the Bruins' football team is also still alive in the Class 6A playoffs.

Cat Madness being unveiled this year is an Alumni Game at 4:30 p.m. Former Anderson all-stater Will Carlton has been in charge of organizing the alumni game.

Carlton says 28 former Bearcats have committed to playing in the game and former players Orbrey Gritton and Adam Beasley will serve as coaches. Darin Young, from the Class of 1986, is the oldest former Bearcat to confirm playing in the alumni game at press time.

Young still holds the Anderson record of 15 assists in one game, which he accomplished in a game at Harrodsburg.

“We hope that the tradition continues for our athletes,” Drury said.

During the festivities, members of other Anderson teams will be honored. The boys’ golf team, which made the state tournament, and Kaitlyn Riley, who qualified for the girls’ state tourney as an individual golfer, will be recognized.

The Anderson boys’ basketball teams, cheerleaders and dance teams will all perform during the evening. “I am Anderson County through and through,” Drury said. “I am all for recognizing the kids both athletically and academically. I want us to have the best overall sports program in the state.”

Also during the evening, Drury plans on recognizing long-time fans Charlie Bryant and Pee Wee Robinson, both of whom passed away earlier this year.

Doors open for the event at 12:30 p.m. Admission is $5 per person.

RAMS

quarter many of the varsity players were substituted by junior varsity players, with freshman Josh Smith, Michael Secen, Nathan Bain, Ethan Gray, Asa Brown and eighth grader Zach Dennis seeing significant minutes and making significant contributions in this season opener. The Rams were in action again on Nov. 1 at the Kentucky Basketball Academy in Lexington. The Rams encountered a huge let down against Galilean Christian Academy, from Liberty, and Faith Christian of Elizabethtown. The Rams shot themselves in the foot with numerous turnovers and missed free throws. The inability to get the offense going in either game caused the Rams to watch their record slip to 1-1 and then 1-2 in back to back losses against a very quick Galilean Christian team, 62-50, and a good-sized Faith Christian team, 53-37.

On Nov. 5, the Rams, on the road again, managed to squeak by a persistent Bourbon Christian Academy team with upperclassman leadership by senior center Jason Smith, who scored 18 points. Forward Michael Cooper and junior guards Nathan Ward and Hunter Wells also had big games. On a game-saving steal by Wells and throw out for a last second lay-up by stand out eighth grader, Zach Dennis, CAL edged Bourbon Christian, 48-47.

On Nov. 7, the varsity girls’ volleyball team, boys’ middle school basketball team and the boys’ varsity basketball team all took the floor against the Georgetown Crusaders. The near-capacity home crowd watched as their Rams rolled to a huge home-opening win against the Crusaders topping the visitors 64-29. On a night when the Rams were hitting on all cylinders, multiple players contributed to the big win led by Dennis with 16 points and seven steals.

The next day had the Rams on the road once more in Lexington at Bluegrass Baptist School where both teams fought tooth and nail down to the wire, exchanging leads several times as well as finding themselves locked in a dead tie numerous times within the last quarter. The Rams kept just within striking distance down the stretch behind Wells’ 12 points and sophomore guard Royalty’s 11.

The Eagles, however, took a 63-55 win, sealing the effort with clutch free throwing down the stretch.

Rams returned to Lawrenceburg to defeat the Holy Angels Academy of Louisville, 40-30. After a very slow offensive start by both teams, CAL finally managed to kick-start their offense in the second half of competition. Beginning with a harassing defense that racked up the turnovers, CAL was able to translate those into several transition points to push the Rams ahead by 13 at the half way point. The Rams dominated inside and several put backs continued to build the lead until the fourth quarter.

The Holy Angels made a run on the Rams to narrow the lead to six.

Rams’ head coach Cory Robinson, who is assisted by Tony Hatton and Eric Chrisman, says, “Our goal this year is to be an up-tempo, running team. We’ve started a little slow at 4-3 on the season, but the team is taking big steps and getting better every day.”

advantage of South Oldham's inability to convert in the red zone to claim a 27-21 overtime victory in Crestwood. It is the second consecutive year that Franklin has been to the regional final. Anderson has been to the Region 3 final in 2011 and this year, while making the Region 2 championship game in 2010. Franklin prevailed at South Oldham when burly running back Chris Roberts scored from three yards out in overtime. Roberts riddled South Oldham for 228 yards on 19 carries and also scored on runs of 46 and 44 yards. South Oldham, however, felt it was one that slipped away as the Dragons saw three drives inside the Franklin 20 stopped by turnovers and another end with a missed field goal attempt. All of that matters little Friday night. Neither does the fact that Anderson defeated Franklin 35-21 back on Oct. 18. In that one, Franklin jumped to a quick 14-0 lead but Anderson roared back. Franklin got an early touchdown when quarterback Barrett Sanderson hit Lorenzo McCaskell for a short touchdown pass. Less than a minute later, Anderson's Ross Cox fumbled at his own 19, setting up another quick Franklin score, with McCaskell running it in again. But Anderson settled down with a pair of long drives sandwiched around a 60-yard pass from Sanderson to McCaskell. With Franklin leading 21-14, the Flyers called for a fake punt from their own 14. Anderson's Chase Sutherland got his hand on Zack Durham's pass, setting up the tying score with 28 seconds left in the first half. Anderson dominated the second half to clinch the district champion-in the series with Franklin. Before winning last month, the Bearcats' last win over Franklin County came in 2002.

Anderson in regional finals

This year marks the fifth time Anderson has advanced to a regional championship game. Bearcat coach Mark Peach has taken part in four of them. He was a junior tackle at Anderson when the Bearcats lost to Danville in the 1987 Class AA regional final. He has been head coach when the Bearcats advanced to the regional final in 2010, 2011 and this year. Comment at www.theandersonnews.com.

ship. The Bearcats put together a 95-yard drive to go ahead 28-21, then put the clincher on the board when Cox intercepted a pass and capped the night with a one-yard plunge. Friday night should be a dogfight and what happened five weeks before is history. Every game is different. Anderson coach Mark Peach does not expect either team to do things dramatically different from the first time around. "When you get to this point of the season, you are who you are," he says. "You can do a few things different and put in some new wrinkles, but that is it. "Franklin County is a great football team. It will be a tremendous challenge for us."

Keys to the game

Ball security. When the teams met the first time, Anderson turned the ball over twice while Franklin did once. All three turnovers resulted in scores for the other team. So far, in the first two playoff games, Anderson might have been its own worst enemy with crucial turnovers against both Cooper and Conner. Franklin, on the other hand, was the beneficiary of South Oldham's carelessness and made the Dragons pay. Controlling the line. When Anderson defeated Franklin earlier, the Bearcats won the battles up front. Friday, against Conner, the Bearcat defense harassed Drew Barker all night. Anderson is very good up front and this might be the Bearcats' biggest advantage against Franklin. Speed. Franklin has lots of it in Chris Roberts and Lorenzo McCaskell. When the teams played the first time, McCaskell netted only 34 yards on the ground and Roberts had 15. Receiving, they combined for 88 yards on eight catches. Anderson must be able to contain them again as the Flyers hold a speed advantage on the Bearcats.

The series

Franklin County leads the all-time series, which dates to 1970, 12-3. Anderson has never won two straight

COMEBACK

10-2 and moved on to its third regional championship game in four years, where the Bearcats will host district rival Franklin County Friday night. Conner bowed out at 8-4 as Barker's career as one of Kentucky's best-ever quarterbacks ended.

On a night when the Bearcats never trailed, it was fitting that the end of the shootout began with an interception.

It had been a night that saw three, yes, three, kickoffs returned for touchdowns, two on successive plays. There had been three other offensive scoring plays over 30 yards and Conner had almost completely erased a two-touchdown deficit, only to see some trickery on a two-point conversion attempt go awry.

After Cox's theft, the Bearcats used 13 plays to run out the clock in a drive that saw Conner use all three of its timeouts in an effort to get the ball back. Several times during the final drive, Anderson's resolve to keep the ball was just as apparent as the Bearcat runners wrapped up the ball in an old school manner.

Conner was just as intent to get the ball back, repeatedly clawing at the ball, but to no avail.

"Our kids ran the ball hard," said Anderson coach Mark Peach. "Our offensive line did a tremendous job and we were able to run the clock out. That was the drive of a championship-caliber football team."

"Coach Peach was saying, keep going, keep going," Harvey said. "He was saying just keep getting first downs."

And the Bearcats needed everything championship caliber against a Conner team that many had picked as the pre-season favorite to represent the eastern half of the state in the finals. Barker, who chose Kentucky over several other major colleges, was the main reason.

Friday, however, the Anderson defense limited Barker to 6-of-23 passing - he came in hitting on more than 64 percent of his passes - and 123 yards, well below his average. Barker had several passes, including the decisive interception, go through receivers' hands, but he spent most of the night running from an Anderson defense that dominated the line of scrimmage and applied constant pressure.

"Coach (Duane) Hammons had a great game plan," Peach said of the Anderson defensive coordinator. "Our defensive line played extremely well and we had some great coverages in the secondary."

"We really played good," said Harvey. "We played hard and we came off the ball real good."

Harvey and fellow defensive end Landon Searcy harassed Barker all game while another senior, tackle Tyler Puckett forced a fumble on Conner's second drive. Puckett appeared to simply knock the ball away from Barker and then fell on it at the Anderson 16.

The Bearcats took 17 plays to march 84 yards with Cox capping the drive with a 2-yard run, but Zachary Carmichael, who had been battling flu-like symptoms all week, completed six straight passes for 48 yards during the march.

It sent the message that Anderson was not going to be out-toughed Friday.

"I wouldn't trade Zach for any quarterback in the world," Cox said. "He came in sick all week and played his heart out."

Carmichael might have set the tone when he ran for eight yards and a first down on Anderson's second offensive play. Carmichael ran for 58 yards and completed 15-of-22 passes for 167 yards.

"He just gutted it out tonight," Peach said.

Conner answered when Jacob Warwick scored from eight yards out, but Cox got the points back when he took the ensuing kickoff 88 yards for six.

"I got some great blocks," said Cox, who saw an opening just past his own 30 yard line and only had one player to beat.

The teams then traded more kickoff returns with Dusty Puckett putting Anderson up 21-7 with his own 88-yard jaunt to open the second half. Conner's Jesse McKeenan returned the favor with an 84-yarder.

The Bearcats sandwiched scoring passes of 31 and 4 yards from Carmichael to Tristin Ashburn around a 31-yard bomb from Barker to Andrew Way and seemed in good shape heading into the fourth quarter.

But Anderson almost imploded.

First, Barker answered chants of "over-rated" with a perfectly thrown 50-yard bomb to McKeenan to cut Anderson's lead to 35-28.

On the Bearcats' first play after the following kickoff, McKeenan picked off Carmichael's pass in the flat and returned it 38 yards to pull Conner within 35-34 with 6:54 to go. Anderson's 14-point lead had been sliced to one in 14 seconds.

But on the extra point attempt, Barker, the holder, spun on a fake. Anderson's Sam Laytart smelled the razzle-dazzle, forcing Barker to throw an off-balance pass.

"That was kind of surprising," Ashburn said. "I didn't know why they would do that but thankfully we were able to stop it."

Anderson was still not out of the woods, however, as Laytart fumbled on the Bearcats' next offensive play.

The Anderson defense rallied, however.

"I was thinking, 'Oh, gosh!'" Harvey admitted, "But we stayed tough and got the stops when we needed them."

Peach agreed. "You have to look on the other side of the field. Conner is a great program with great coaching. Drew Barker is a great quarterback. Those kids were making some plays, too."

"The kids bounced back from some adversity. I am so proud of them."

Cox makes his case under bright lights

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

The media contingent that descended on Anderson County Friday night was a bit more than usual, even for a playoff football game.

The reason, of course, was a chance to see Conner quarterback Drew Barker, who has committed to the University of Kentucky and is considered one of the Top 10 quarterback prospects in the nation.

Anderson's defense pressured Barker enough that he completed just 6-of-23 passes. However, several on-the-mark passes fell through his receivers' hands.

All of the television stations in the Lexington market had cameramen on the sidelines, as did CN2, a cable station. Kentucky Sports Radio host Matt Jones was also walking the sidelines, as was at least one writer from the Kentucky edition of The Cincinnati Enquirer, who was there to cover Conner, which is located in the Cincinnati suburbs.

Barker gallantly tried rally his team through the night and did run for 111 yards, but Anderson County's Ross Cox might have made the same statement he has made all year: He's big-time, too.

Cox ran for 48 yards and a touchdown. He returned a kick 88 yards for another score. Cox caught six passes for 77 yards and picked off the final pass of Barker's high school career with just over five minutes to play. He returned it 31 yards. Cox finished with 244 all-purpose yards and made three tackles with one assist. He also broke up a pass.

"That young man is a high quality football player," Anderson County coach Mark Peach said of Barker, "but Ross Cox is one too."

Anderson County resident Freddie Maggard, a former UK quarterback, has been pushing voters to seriously consider Cox in the Mr. Football voting, but Cox's chances are considered slim at best.

"He never comes off the field," Maggard has repeatedly said on Twitter.

"He is way underrated," Peach said Friday. "He does a little bit of everything."

Cox makes no secret of his desire to play at Kentucky, but the Wildcats have only offered a preferred walk-on status at this point.

"I would love to go to UK but they have got to talk to me first," Cox said Friday.

Peach, however, believes his star could team well with Barker.

"Ross Cox would look pretty good in Blue and White too," Peach said.

★ Pardon, Mr. Turkey ★

Each year as Thanksgiving approaches, the president of the United States receives two turkeys from the National Turkey Federation and the Poultry and Egg National Board. Rather than eat them, the president pardons the turkeys in a small ceremony at the White House.

When the tradition started is not clear. Some say that President Abraham Lincoln started it when he pardoned his son Tad's pet turkey. Others say President Harry Truman started the tradition in 1947, although there is no official proof of that. President John F. Kennedy was given a turkey in 1963, but chose not to eat it.

In 1989, President George H.W. Bush pardoned the turkey for the first time officially. Since then, every president has pardoned an official turkey and an alternate every year. The turkeys are sent to a farm or ranch to live out the rest of their days.

HOROSCOPES

CAPRICORN
December 22–January 19

Time to count your blessings, Capricorn. You have many. A charge is reduced, and a lesson is learned. A memo makes objectives crystal clear.

ARIES
March 21–April 19

Gratitude can be hard to come by at home, but not this week, Aries. Many thanks come your way for the smallest of efforts. A wise friend slips up. Be forgiving.

CANCER
June 22–July 22

Fool you are not, Cancer, but your foolish pride is getting in the way of success. Admit your need for help, accept offers of help, and the pace will pick up.

LIBRA
September 23–October 22

Acceptance grows for an idea. It's now or never, Libra. Good friends postpone an event. Relax. The new date promises to be bigger and better.

AQUARIUS
January 20–February 18

Courage comes when you need it most. Bravo, Aquarius! A trip gets underway, and many good times are in store. A phone call boosts confidence.

TAURUS
April 20–May 20

You're not one to question the loyalty of a friend, but come on, Taurus. Are they as deserving as you think they are? Be honest. A deadline is moved up.

LEO
July 23–August 22

A scheduling conflict turns out to be a blessing in disguise. Old friends and new make a special occasion joyous. Make sure you return the favor, Lec.

SCORPIO
October 23–November 21

Run, Scorpio, run. A friend is looking for assistance, and they are zeroing in on you. You have neither the resources nor the time, so don't take the bait.

PISCES
February 19–March 20

Keep the faith, Pisces. Your loved one will come through. A financial mistake is uncovered in the nick of time. Romance picks up, and passion burns bright.

GEMINI
May 21–June 21

Convenience outweighs all. Take the easy road and clear the path for more family time, Gemini. An announcement at work takes everyone by surprise.

VIRGO
August 23–September 22

Paltry efforts on the part of a friend are no reason to complain, Virgo. Show your appreciation for what they did do, and next time, they might do more.

SAGITTARIUS
November 22–December 21

Memories are made at a feast, and the camera is put to the test. Enjoy yourself, Sagittarius. You're about to get busier than you have been in some time.

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDINANCE NO. 2013-7 AN AMENDED ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE ADOPTION OF MINIMUM STANDARDS OF CONSTRUCTION FOR ALL ROADS WHICH MAY BE HEREAFTER INCLUDED WITHIN THE ANDERSON COUNTY ROAD SYSTEM AND ACCEPTED FOR FUTURE MAINTENANCE AS A GRAVEL ROAD

WHEREAS, from time to time the Anderson County Fiscal Court is the recipient of requests from citizens and taxpayers of Anderson County to accept, as a part of the Anderson County Road System and for purposes of future maintenance, gravel roads which are old unmaintained county roads, extensions of existing county roads, or existing gravel roads within Anderson County that have not heretofore been a part of the Anderson County Road System or accepted for the purpose of full maintenance by Anderson County; and

WHEREAS, in the past, such gravel roads requested to be added as a part of the Anderson County Road System have differed greatly in the standards of construction to which they were originally built and in their current condition at the time of request for addition into the road system; and

WHEREAS, such variations could result in the imposition of a substantial and increasing burden upon Anderson County road funds and in order to establish uniform standards and specifications for any and all gravel roads that may be hereafter considered for acceptance by the Anderson County Fiscal Court as a part of the Anderson County Road System;

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE FISCAL COURT OF THE COUNTY OF ANDERSON, KENTUCKY, by virtue of authority vested in said Fiscal Court by KRS 67.083; after the passage, approval and publication of this ordinance as follows:

SECTION (1): ACCEPTANCE OF GRAV-

EL ROADS

No gravel road will be considered for acceptance as a part of the Anderson County Road System, nor shall any county funds be expended for future maintenance thereof, unless said road meets, fulfills, or exceeds the requirements and conditions contained herein.

SECTION (2): STRUCTURAL REQUIREMENTS

A. Road must be at least 14 feet wide.

B. Road must have at least 10 inches of dense grade aggregate placed on it and compacted under the supervision of the Anderson County Road Supervisor.

C. At least one property owner must deed a 10,000 square foot (100 x 100) bus turnaround approved by the Anderson County Road Supervisor and Board of Education representative.

D. Drainage improvements must be made (if necessary) prior to acceptance of road at discretion of Road Supervisor and transportation committee.

E. Proper signage will be placed by Anderson County Road Department before acceptance of the road as part of the Anderson County Road System.

F. Distance of county maintenance for the Anderson County Road Map must be approved by the Anderson County Fiscal Court.

SECTION (3): RIGHT-OF-WAY

A minimum right-of-way of Thirty (30) feet shall be conveyed by the adjoining property owners to Anderson County. Said right-of-way shall be cleared, graded and sloped to provide a adequate width for the roadway, adequate drainage and site distances, all to be approved by the Anderson County Road Supervisor.

SECTION (4): COUNTY MAINTENANCE

County maintenance as used herein, shall mean maintaining the surface in-kind (the condition said road is in at the time the County assumes maintenance thereon), right-of-way mowing and maintaining proper drainage to protect the roadway surface only.

SECTION (5): APPLICATION OF ORDINANCE

This Ordinance shall pertain to all gravel roads existing at the time of the passage of this Ordinance, that at some point in the past have been a county maintained road and that service residential areas which are located in Anderson County, Kentucky, outside the corporate limits of the City of Lawrenceburg and which are not presently being maintained by any governmental entity.

SECTION (6): Other Provisions:

1) This ordinance DOES NOT APPLY to and SHALL NOT SUPERSEDE any of the subdivision regulations of Anderson County or any subdivision road.

2) Each road shall be considered for acceptance by the Anderson County Fiscal Court independently.

GIVEN FIRST READING ON THE 5th day of November, 2013.

Published in the Anderson News on November 20, 2013.

SCHEDULED FOR SECOND READING, on the 3rd day of December, 2013 by the Fiscal Court of Anderson County, Kentucky, to be held on the 3rd day of December, 2013 at 10:00 a.m. at the Anderson County Fiscal Court, 137 South Main Street, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, November 21, 2013, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose and any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property

(4) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(5) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.

AUCTION

2 Commercial Lots
at 509 East Woodford St., Lawrenceburg, KY
Saturday, November 23, at 9:30 a.m.

The owners, J.N. & Janice Coffey, have directed that the property on East Woodford Street and Cardinal Drive be sold at auction on the above date. Look to the future at what is being offered in this auction. If you are looking for potential income-producing property in a high-traffic count location, here it is. You need to consider these two lots. They would be suitable for apartments, condominiums or business. Frontage on two streets, Woodford Street and Cardinal Drive.

LOT NO 1 fronts West Woodford Street and has 150 ft. frontage. Has an older garage.

LOT NO 2 fronts Cardinal Drive and has a frontage of 75 feet. Has a barn that currently is used for storage.

Zoning has been changed from B1 to R3.
We have plats in our office.

The lots will be offered individually with the right reserved to regroup and offer as a whole.

TERMS: Lots are being offered at auction subject to seller's confirmation. Buyer(s) will be required to deposit 10% of the purchase price the day of the sale, and the balance will be due with the deed on or before December 23, 2013. Lots are being SOLD AS IS, WHERE IS. Announcements the day of the auction will take precedence over printed or other information.
